

100 mm

A technical drawing of a rectangular frame. The drawing consists of two concentric rectangles. The outer rectangle is defined by four thin lines extending from its corners. The inner rectangle is defined by a single line. The space between the two rectangles represents the frame's thickness. The vertical dimension of the inner rectangle is labeled as 100 mm, and the horizontal dimension is labeled as 48 mm.

48 mm